

You Complete Me

Last week we were stopped in our tracks by a bag of coffee. The hip, retro logo caught our eye, and when we smelled the bag... OMG... heaven. We almost couldn't put it down—the aroma was positively lickable, and these were just the beans!

Water Avenue Coffee Company (WAC) is supplying local baristas with beautiful beans, and they've recently opened a retail/roasting house of their own. You'll want to stop in for pastries from Nuvrei, Pie Spot "pie holes," and to enjoy an exceptional espresso, cappuccino or latte (etc.) at your leisure. Haven't had enough WAC? Take home a bag of beans, or ask about their quickie classes on everything from pulling espresso shots to proper use of a French press. Or just sit at the counter and chat up a barista—they're incredibly knowledgeable about all aspects of coffee, from the plantation to the cup. (You could easily spend an hour or two just learning about grinds, pour-over methods, and the Chemex drip.)

It's pretty much Coffee Heaven—for serious and casual drinkers alike. Water Avenue Coffee, you had us at "hello."
